

Dear EDRM members and friends,

As some of you may know, Jim Waldron will be leaving Duke Law and EDRM at the end of July. Jim joined Duke Law part time in 2017 to help support EDRM's members and projects. He was previously clerk of the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the District of New Jersey, where he developed a national reputation for his technical knowledge and strategic leadership. At EDRM, he has been instrumental in helping to strengthen EDRM as a bridge among the judiciary, the legal profession, and the academy and led creative efforts to deepen awareness and understanding of e-discovery and the ways in which technology is transforming the practice of law. He brought wisdom and enthusiasm to the task. We are grateful for his excellent work during these past two years and wish him the very best in his next endeavors.

Lora Beth Farmer and Melinda Vaughn will continue to provide support to EDRM members and project teams; feel free to email them or EDRM@law.duke.edu with any questions. As always, we welcome your feedback and appreciate your support and dedication to EDRM.

Sincerely,

David F. Levi
Director, Bolch Judicial Institute
